- 2:30 pm Cathedrals Of Culture - Halden Prison - Halden Prison in Norway, designed by the Danish architectural firm EMA, has been labelled "the world's most humane prison" by Time Magazine. Since its opening in 2010, the high security facility houses some of Norway's most dangerous convicts. But can barless windows, with panoramic views of Norwegian nature, truly help hardened criminals? Can a prison ever really be humane? Traditionally, prisons have been designed as spheres of punishment: they are where society's tolerance ends. But as Michael Madsen's documentary Prison demonstrates, this facility reverses this trend by mimicking normal life. Madsen probes the boundary between humanist ideals of rehabilitation and society's historical hunger for revenge and punishment. (From France, in English) (Documentary) (Rpt) G CC
